In the 1960s, which issue was the focus of the Supreme Court decisions in Mapp v. Ohio, Gideon v. Wainwright, and Miranda v. Arizona?

a. freedom of the press
b. racial segregation
c. rights of the accused
d. interstate commerce

Answer

c. rights of the accused

All of these decisions had to do with a person’s rights when concerned with search and seizure, being arrested, trial by jury, and being allowed to have a defense attorney.